Wing welcomes Wolf 45

The 8th Fighter Wing welcomed its 45th Wolf Monday afternoon during a change of command ceremony in Hangar 3.

Col. Jeff “Wolf” Lofgren assumed command of the Wolf Pack from Col. Brian Bishop during a ceremony officiated by Lt. Gen. Garry Trexler, 7th Air Force commander.

“What a great honor (it is) to be a part of this world-renowned fighter wing,” said Col. Lofgren to Wolf Pack members, Republic of Korea military representatives and local civic leaders in attendance. “A respectful, responsible, professional team, away from home, who must look to each other, our new family, our new teammates, to get the job done.”

In his first public address to the men and women of the 8th FW, Col. Lofgren spelled out his vision for the next year.

“This is quite a team, T-E-A-M; a great acronym and it will be my focus for the next year,” he said. “Teams work together and accomplish greater things than individuals.”

The Wolf spelled out his acronym as Team, Excellence, Attitude and Mission.

“Excellence makes all our hard work worth while,” said Col. Lofgren. “My dad always said, ‘People who say can’t are those who never accomplish anything’ ... only those with a can-do attitude succeed.”

The Wolf wrapped up his remarks by recapping the distinct and proud mission of the 8th FW; Defend the Base, Accept Follow-on Forces and Take the Fight North.

“I look forward to working with you all; let’s get started,” he said.

Col. Lofgren comes to the Wolf Pack from Hill AFB, Utah where he was the 388th Operations Group commander.

Col. Bishop, Wolf 44, departed the 8th FW to become the Deputy Director of Air Force Concept of Operations at the Pentagon, leaving the Wolf Pack a few final words.

“I couldn’t be more proud of each and every Wolf pack member,” said Col. Bishop. “Thank you for everything. As it says in the Wolf Pack creed, you are ready, you are lethal and may God have mercy on the Wolf Pack’s prey.”

Memorial Day: A Heritage of Service

By Gen. Paul Hester
Pacific Air Forces commander

Since 1868, Americans have paused the last Monday in May each year to remember the men and women who have answered the call of service and have given the ultimate sacrifice to defend our Nation and our way of life.

This year, I'm privileged to join the millions of Americans in honoring the heroic men and women of our past ... as well as our present. Our history is filled with brave citizens who, when called upon, rose to meet incredible challenges to secure liberty for billions of people around the world. That remarkable spirit of sacrifice continues today as America fights once again to ensure freedom and democracy prevail over extremism and terror.

In Pacific Air Forces, today's Airmen are following in the foot-steps of the generations before them who served in harm's way. From the Far East Air Forces of World War II to our expeditionary Airmen in Afghanistan and Iraq, Airmen in the Pacific have selflessly defended America far from her shores – many having given their lives to do so.

So on this Memorial Day, a grateful nation remembers those who have fallen for the great pursuit of freedom – their sacrifice lives within each of us. And we salute all of our magnificent men and women who proudly continue their legacy of young heroes keeping America safe.

Gen. Bell to USFK forces: 'Watch out for each other'

By Gen. B.B. Bell
United States Forces Korea commander

Memorial Day is a time to honor and commemorate our veterans who died defending our country and our freedom. On this Memorial Day, we will again add more names to the roster of fallen heroes.

I ask all of you to please take a moment to remember all those who have given their lives in the name of freedom and democracy. Our gratitude and our prayers are with them and their families on this solemn remembrance.

Memorial Day also marks the traditional beginning of the summer season and a time for outdoor fun, travel and family activities. Many members of the United States Forces Korea team will take advantage of the four-day weekend to travel around the country and enjoy the beautiful sights in the Republic of Korea.

Others will participate in outdoor activities such as mountain climbing, hiking, cycling, water sports and other athletic events. The potential for off-duty accidents and injuries during this time will increase significantly.

We must make every effort to ensure that the joy of this holiday period does not turn into tragedy. I ask you to watch out for each other and to work together as a team to ensure one another's safety.

Leaders must reiterate the importance of safety awareness and education prior to Memorial Day weekend and the summer season. Leaders should target alcohol use, indiscipline, driver's training and enforcing the buddy system and standards for largest impact.

Our goal is No Loss of Life at any time. We can achieve this goal if every member of the USFK team — Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines, civilian employees, contractors and family members — makes a commitment to safety over the upcoming holiday and throughout the summer. First-line leaders must make the difference with "Under the Oak Tree Counseling" by making a verbal contract with their subordinates on behavior and off-duty discipline.

The chain of command is responsible to effectively supervise and enforce standards. I am convinced that we can minimize risks and save lives by applying the composite risk management process proactively throughout the chain of command.

I call on everyone to maintain vigilance on and off duty and take time to review your unit summer safety campaign. Visit the USFK safety Web site at <http://safety.korea.army.mil/> for more information.

All of us are responsible for looking out for one another. Our tactical actions impact strategically on the wellness of our Alliance with the Republic of Korea. Teamwork counts! Keep up your guard and make this holiday period and summer safe.

We go together!

"All of us are responsible for looking out for one another. Our tactical actions impact strategically on the wellness of our Alliance with the Republic of Korea. Teamwork counts!"

AMXS ‘Cobra’ loaders take top PACAF honors

By Senior Airman Stephen Collier
Wolf Pack public affairs

Three weapons loaders from the 8th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron were recently named Pacific Air Forces outstanding load crew of the year for fiscal year 2005.

Wolf Pack winners included Tech. Sgt. Vance Wright and Senior Airmen Holly White and Bret Cole. Each member has since PCSed to their new assignments.

The award, which recognizes a PACAF load team for its job performance, efficiency and overall contribution to their respective organizations, is very important to load crews because they receive recognition for being the best in every aspect of their Air Force Specialty Code, according to Master Sgt. James Lomax, 8th AMXS weapons standardization superintendent.

“It’s a tough award to win because you’re competing against five other PACAF installations,” Sgt. Lomax pointed out. “PACAF headquarters has to read through each (award package) which is full of the crew’s accomplishments during the past year.”

The selection process eventually allows PACAF evaluators to ultimately ask the question of what Sgt. Lomax describes as “did this crew ultimately contribute to the mission of the wing?”

Gen. Paul Hester, commander of PACAF, congratulated the competitors and the winners of the award in a recent message to the command.

Some of the factors that lead to the Wolf Pack being chosen over other PACAF installations, according to Sgt. Lomax, included the squadron’s performance during the 2005 operational readiness inspection where loaders assisted in the wing earning an “excellent” rating in four functional areas.

Weapons loaders, lovingly referred to as “load toads,” were also responsible for tracking normally-installed equipment, valued at $15 million, resulting in zero discrepancies for any one item. Loaders also installed eight F-16 gun systems, resulting in zero discrepancies as noted by quality assurance personnel, enabling the unit to achieve an overall 99.3 percent gun-firing rate.

With all of these successes, Sgt. Lomax said loaders came through on their training, never failing one load in 134 proficiency evaluations.

“(Those types of numbers are) impeccable,” Sgt. Lomax noted. “The Kunsan loaders have proven time and time again that they are ready to Take the Fight North. I would hate to be the recipient of the pain the 8th Fighter Wing would bring to the table when the horn blows. I’m proud to be part of the best weapons community in the Air Force.”

IRAQ

Too soon to announce withdrawal

Monday – It’s still too soon for the Defense Department to announce troop withdrawals from Iraq, particularly with Iraq’s defense and interior ministers yet to be named, a defense spokesman told Pentagon reporters today. Bryan Whitman, deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, lauded this weekend’s inauguration of Iraq’s first democratically elected, permanent parliamentary government as “a big event” and “significant milestone” for Iraq.

U.S. Marine killed

Monday – A Marine was killed in Iraq Sunday and the Defense Department has identified four soldiers and a sailor killed while supporting operations in Iraq. The Marine killed was assigned to Regimental Combat Team 5 and died due to enemy action in Anbar province. No further details were available. The Marine’s name is being withheld pending notification of the family.

AFGHANISTAN

Up to 80 Taliban believed killed

Monday – Coalition forces conducted a significant operation early Monday morning in the Kandahar region near the village of Azizi that resulted in the deaths of up to 80 Taliban members, military officials here reported. This was the third such operation in this area within a week in which coalition forces, in support of the Afghan government, have confronted and attacked anti-government forces. The purpose of Monday’s operation was to detain people suspected of terrorist and anti-Afghanistan activities, officials said, but coalition forces encountered organized armed opposition.

Nonchargeable leave authorized for adoptions

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas — Airmen adopting children now may be authorized up to 21 days of nonchargeable leave per calendar year.

A qualifying adoption is defined as the member being eligible for adoption reimbursement of qualified adoption expenses such as adoption, placement, legal and medical fees under Section 1052, Title 10, United States Code.

Adoption leave may be authorized in conjunction with ordinary leave. However, if two service members are married to each other and choose to adopt children, only one service member will be granted an adoption leave of absence.

Title 32 Guardsmen are not authorized adoption leave unless federalized under Title 10 for more than 29 consecutive days.

Reservists must also be on active duty for more than 29 consecutive days before they can take adoption leave.

Airmen will submit their leave requests on an Air Force Form 988 indicating permissive temporary duty and using the statement “Adoption Leave per HQ AFPC/DPS Memorandum dated May 19, 2006” until the revised Air Force Instruction is published.

Those Airmen who already used ordinary leave for adoption purposes on or after Jan. 1, 2006, should work with their commander’s support staff to correct their leave.

Airmen should contact their commander’s support staff or call the Air Force Contact Center at (800) 616-3775, option 1, 1, 2 or DSN 665-5000 for more information. (AFPN)

WASHINGTON— Based on feedback received during visits with Airmen across the Air Force, the Air Force Uniform Board is reviewing several concepts Airmen have suggested regarding the appearance of the service dress uniform.

Some of the informal feedback about the current service dress includes Airmen wanting to revamp the service dress to look more military, like the other services. One senior airman said, “the current uniform resembles a cheesy business suit.” Another staff sergeant said, “think world’s most dominating air power, not CEO,” and another described it as a “cheap leisure suit.”

Other comments have suggested that the uniform needs to reflect the Air Force’s history more.

Senior Master Sgt. Dana Athnos shows off a prototype of the Billy Mitchell heritage coat in the Pentagon May 15, 2006. Sergeant Athnos is a member of the Air Force uniform board.

On an Internet message board an Airman recently wrote, “I want to look good and be proud of my AF heritage.” Another Airman wrote that the dress uniform pales in comparison to any of the other services. “We need something that distinguishes us as proud members of the U.S. military.”

The Air Force began exploring these ideas by producing several prototypes that reflect a combination of ideas that have been gleaned from comments, suggestions and informal surveys.

A more formal survey soon will provide additional opportunities for Airmen to provide feedback and comments.

“We’ve been getting informal feedback on our current service dress uniform for several years, and what we consistently have heard from many Airmen is a desire for a more ‘military,’ and less ‘corporate’ look and feel, something more reflective of the Air Force’s heritage, and its role as a professional military organization,” said Brig. Gen. Robert Allardice, director of Airman development and sustainment, deputy chief of staff for manpower and personnel.

“The Uniform Board has come up with some options to explore these concepts and the initial prototypes are direct descendants of our heritage, rooted in Hap Arnold and Billy Mitchell’s Air Force,” Gen. Allardice said.

The survey will provide a more formal opportunity to collect feedback on whether or not Airmen want a new service dress, and if so, what changes, likes or dislikes they have about the prototypes.

“We believe we need to respond to the force and the constant flow of feedback we receive on the service dress is driving this initiative. We see this as an opportunity to do so, along with a chance to reflect on our rich history, as well as the image we wish to portray in uniform,” said Gen. Allardice. “We want to make sure our uniforms, all combinations, meet our current and future needs.”

This process will use the standard Air Force Uniform Board process and as with the Airman’s Battle Uniform, Airmen are encouraged to take the opportunity to directly contribute to how their new service uniform might look.

The Air Force will present options based on feedback received on possible service dress designs through the uniform board process. (AFPN)

Acclaimed Defense Travel System arriving at Kunsan

By 1st Lt. Tommy Dawson
8th Comptroller Squadron

The Defense Travel System, or DTS, is scheduled to touch down at Kunsan this June. DTS is a seamless, Web-based, secure, integrated travel reservation system.

The system is available to servicemembers 24 hours a day, seven days a week to any who possess a valid account, internet access and the applicable software and hardware.

Automated document processing and payment are familiar features that are carried over to the new incarnation of DTS.

When it comes to traveling via airlines, travelers now also have control over their specific seating arrangement when making airline reservations.

Also, DTS gives each traveler the freedom to select from commercially-established lodging facilities and allows for rental car reservations.

DTS also gives the servicemember the freedom to do it all, much like today’s leading online travel agencies, to include Travelocity, Orbitz and Hotwire, to name a few.

More importantly, servicemembers aren’t limited to “.mil” addresses; Airmen can make reservations right from home!

Another feature unique to the Web-based version is document archiving. Users will have the ability to scan all receipts from their travel into the DTS server which will maintain the documents electronically.

This means there’s no need to keep paper copies of receipts.

The 8th Comptroller Squadron currently has an implementation plan to bring the entire base up online with the new DTS system between June and December of 2006.

Airmen with questions regarding DTS can call the Finance office at 782-5414.

Diamond Corner Biking Attire

It’s May and that means more Airmen are riding their bikes again. But some of the Pack is still forgetting a few basic rules while in uniform. When not riding your bike (i.e. - going in the post office, into your dormitory or the MPF), you must be in compliance with Air Force Instruction 36-2903. This means helmet and vest go off and the hat goes on. We all know you’ll be out of standards for only a few minutes, but any time is too long when it comes to standards.

Remember to stay Diamond Sharp!

Can you guess what’s WRONG with this picture?
Wearing a reflective vest and bicycle helmet while being dismounted from the bike.

BEWARE: 101 'CRITICAL DAYS' ARE HERE

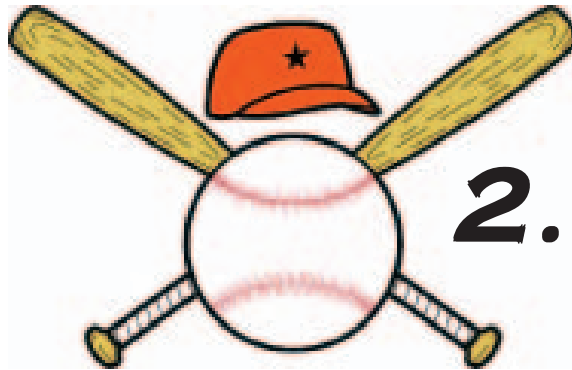

Eight things to be mindful of during accident-prone times

1.

Insects

- ❑ Repellant – When outdoors wear insect repellant.
- ❑ Use 'Deet' – When purchasing repellant, look for products that include deet. Deet is considered the best tick repellant.
- ❑ Odors – Avoid foods that give off strong odors when wasps or yellow jackets are present.

Sports

- ❑ Stretch – Warm up for 5 minutes prior to exercise and cool down 5 minutes afterwards.
- ❑ Use proper equipment – Helmets, goggles, mitts, braces, guards, pads and even sunscreen are just safety "devices" available for today's active person.

Heat and the sun

- ❑ Exposure – Too much sun can give you painful sunburn, cause heat exhaustion or lead to heat stroke.
- ❑ Using the SPF – Use sunscreen with a Skin Protection Force, or SPF.
- ❑ Cover up – Wear a hat and clothing that covers as much of your body as possible.

Outdoor cooking

- ❑ Lighting – Always cook in well-ventilated areas with good lighting.
- ❑ Flammables – Keep grill or firepit away from tents, bushes and dry leaves.
- ❑ Be vigilant – Never leave a fire unattended. Be extra careful on windy days.

By Staff Sgt. Jenkins
8th Fighter Wing safety office

We all know it's the time of year where we transition into the 101 Critical Days of summer. Memorial Day weekend marks the start of this campaign and it continues to run throughout the summer concluding on Labor Day weekend.

During the 101 Critical Days of Summer, the Air Force historically has high mishap rates. Just last year, the Air Force had 29 fatalities during this time period.

At Kunsan, there were a total of 109 mishaps during the 2005 101 CDS campaign. Lost productivity impedes on the successful accomplishment of the Wolf Pack mission.

Outdoor barbecues, water sports and intramural sports, just to name a few, are some of the activities Wolf Pack members can be seen taking part in during this time of year.

A hot-button issue at the pack, however, is Airmen going home on mid-tour and participating in activities they otherwise can't take part in at Kunsan.

Seatbelt use should not be forgotten just because Airmen are on leave. Privately owned motor vehicles accounted for 18 of the 29 Air Force-wide fatalities last year.

The three common factors that contributed to these accidents were seatbelts, speeding and alcohol. Nine of the 18 fatalities were motorcycle accidents.

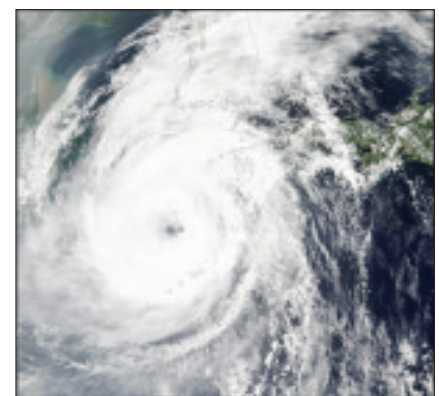

There are several Air Force members who own and operate motorcycles back at their home station while others may purchase one when they go home on leave.

If you're already a rider or thinking about purchasing a motorcycle, make sure you have taken a Motorcycle Safety Foundation, or MSF, course.

Also, always wear the proper personal protective equipment and, most importantly, make sure alcohol is left out of the equation.

Whether at Kunsan or back home, there will be some who will indulge. Recreational activities, water sports and especially activities requiring the operation of equipment, paired with alcohol, is not a good mixture. Be responsible.

Have a wonderful summer Wolf Pack!

Inclement weather

- ❑ Use shelter – Move to a sturdy building; do not take shelter in sheds or under isolated trees.
- ❑ Flooding – Get to high ground in case of flash floods.
- ❑ Unplug appliances – Phone lines and metal pipes can 6.

Driving

- ❑ Seatbelts – Remember to use seatbelts. It's not only a good idea, it's mandatory.
- ❑ Servicable – Only use vehicles in good condition.
- ❑ Pedestrians – Give pedestrians the right of way and use caution during darkness.

7.

Outdoor activities

- ❑ Be educated – Before engaging in any activity, learn as much about it as possible.
- ❑ Safety! – Wear the appropriate safety equipment if required.
- ❑ Wingman? – Tell someone where you're going and what time you expect to return, or take a Wingman.

Alcohol

- ❑ Impairment – Alcohol impairs judgment and reaction time.
- ❑ Watch for machinery – Don't drink if operating any equipment, recreational or otherwise.
- ❑ Dehydrates – Alcohol also dehydrates the body. Drink water instead.

Remember - Take Responsibility For Your Actions!

REGULAR SEASON COVERAGE

Men, women prepare for weekend tourney

The Kunsan men’s varsity softball team was a gracious host to Yongsan last weekend as the visitors left with three wins in four games.

After getting swept in Saturday’s doubleheader, 21-16 and 13-7, Kunsan won Sunday’s first match 14-10, but dropped the finale 17-5. Kunsan’s record fell to 3-5 on the season.

“We just didn’t continue to hit the ball,” said Kunsan head coach John Charleston. “We would start each game with a great first two innings and then let them come back and beat us in the later parts of the game.”

Coach Charleston recognized catcher Colin Bennett’s performance as a bright spot for the team. Bennett clubbed two grand slams in the four games.

The Kunsan women’s varsity softball team (1-7) was swept in its four-game series during the weekend. Yongsan won with scores of 7-2 and 6-2 on Saturday and 11-1 and 4-3 on Sunday.

Both men’s and women’s teams will venture to Yongsan this weekend for the Pacific-Wide Softball Tournament, which features 42 men’s teams and 34 women’s team from throughout the region.

Games begin at 9 a.m. today, and a double-elimination tournament begins Sunday with the championship game slated for 3 p.m. Monday.

“We have two key players returning this week from mid-tour leave,” Coach Charleston said about his men’s team. “We should represent Kunsan well at this tournament.”
